The 24 hour physical management of adults and children with complex disabilities

2012

This important and exciting 4 day course is suitable for physiotherapists, occupational therapists, rehabilitation engineers, clinical scientists, therapy technical assistants and rehabilitation consultants working with people who have profound disabilities arising from neurological origin.

Posture management of this client group is essential in order to optimise basic functional ability and minimise the secondary complications associated with physical disability of a complex nature.

Theoretical and applied teaching will provide a background to the physical management of the severely disabled person over 24 hours, in sitting, lying and standing.

Issues relating to physical management in the workplace will be considered.

The course is based around the use of the 24/7 assessment form, the use of which will be taught step-by-step. Applying the form, the course tutors will demonstrate a comprehensive assessment of two clients. The group will then analyse the data and prescribe (in theory) appropriate equipment.
